MD Fintech Community Blog – Contributor Brief

As part of the lead-up to MD Fintech 26 (25 June), we're inviting members to contribute to our fintech community blog series.

Theme

What's next for fintech – and how do we get there?

As the industry moves from innovation to real-world impact, we're keen to capture perspectives from across the ecosystem – including fintechs, financial services, consultancies, agencies and partners.

What to write about

We're looking for short, insight-led contributions. You might choose to cover:

- Where you see the biggest opportunities in fintech right now
- Challenges the industry needs to solve next
- How areas like AI, data, payments or regulation are evolving in practice
- What scaling successfully looks like today
- How your role or area of expertise is changing as fintech matures

This isn't intended to be a formal or overly technical piece – we're interested in your honest perspective and real-world insight.

Format

- Approx. 200 words
 - Written in your own voice (first person is absolutely fine)
 - No heavy formatting needed

Deadline

Please submit your contribution by the first week of June

Where it will be shared

Contributions will be featured across Manchester Digital channels in the lead-up to MD Fintech 26, showcasing the breadth of expertise across the community.

How to submit

Please send your contribution to: kate.wilson@manchesterdigital.com

Please provide a title for the blog, and the name and job title of the author.

If you have any questions or want to sense-check an idea before writing, feel free to get in touch.
